“Your ‘Technics’ Awesome, Dude: Technology, Gender, and Perplexities of Smallholder Capitalism in India”

A Public Lecture by

PRITI RAMAMURTHY
Chair and Director, South Asia Center, Associate Professor, Women Studies

Thursday May 16th, 2013
Reception 6pm, Lecture 7pm
Technocultural Studies Building, Art Annex

Priti Ramamurthy is Associate Professor of Women's Studies at the University of Washington and Chair of the South Asia Program. She is the Director and Chair of the South Asia Center in the Jackson School of International Studies, and is an Executive Board Member of the Simpson Center for the Humanities. Her research interests include gender and international economic development, agrarian transitions, and consumption and commodity cultures, and transnational feminisms, areas in which she has published extensively. She won the university's Distinguished Teaching Award in 2002, and held a Senior Research Fellowship from the American Institute for Indian Studies during 2006-2007.

Dr. Ramamurthy will also lead a workshop and discussion on Friday, May 17, 12-1 PM for graduate students and faculty entitled: Women’s Empowerment and Economic Development in India: Between Hype and Hope. This event is open to the public.

For More Information Please Contact the ME/SA Studies Office at 1272 Social Sciences and Humanities, by e-mail at mesastaff@ucdavis.edu or call (530)-754-4926.